with outreach teams yesterday during PIT Count packet pick-up, rode along for a portion of the PIT Count, and met with community leaders.

Diane shared that she is a retired judge and was recently appointed by the Biden administration. She thanked the Coalition for welcoming her and shared that she has been impressed with work being done in the community. She encouraged attendees to reach out to HUD with inquiries or concerns. Michael thanked the community and encouraged folks to reach out if needed.

Courtney thanked all the outreach teams for their work with last night's annual point-in-time (PIT) count.

Training: Domestic Violence & Trauma Informed Services

Discussion

Tom Cottrell and Eileen McKeever from the YWCA presented a training on domestic violence and trauma. Though not all Coalition members encounter clients who are domestic violence survivors on an everyday basis, it is important to have baseline understanding of domestic violence (DV). The training also covers trauma and trauma informed care.

Domestic violence (DV), which can also be referred to as intimate partner violence, is a pattern of behaviors to gain and maintain power and control in a relationship. It crosses income, race, and other demographic groups and most often impacts women. There are different ways DV can present, all of which have an inherent power imbalance. Gaslighting is one form of abuse where the abuser makes someone question their perception or memories. It can be common in DV and also in other non-intimate relationships. There is not one profile to identify who is abusive. Characteristics include narcissism, selfishness, manipulation, difficulty with self-regulation. In each instance, violence is used as a method to gain and maintain control.

DV has physical and emotional impacts. Strangulation is extremely serious as it can be difficult to detect and to prosecute. It can also be an indicator of increased risk factor of homicide and victims can suffer permanent brain damage. The group viewed a video from the National Strangulation Training Institute around the significance of strangulation.

Trauma is biological and it related to how the brain processes danger. A self-defensive or trauma response can be triggered by real or perceive danger. Trauma-informed care can be incorporated into interactions with families and individuals experiencing homelessness.

The group viewed a video - Becoming A Trauma-Informed Advocate from the Michigan Victim Advocacy Network. The video overviewed the components of trauma informed care and how organizations can put it into practice.

When thinking about trauma informed care, organization should consider what things may create a power differential, policies and procedures around gathering information, ways to communicate that staff are safe and non-judgmental, and more. Trauma-informed services should recognize that trauma can come from many different places, not necessarily DV. To be effective, it is important to see the whole person, not just problem that presents itself today.

There are a few questions agencies can use to determine if clients may be experiencing DV. If clients do share that they are in a DV situation, staff should respond by accepting and acknowledging the abuse and its consequences, increasing the sense of safety and trust, bringing a sense of normalcy. Common barriers to disclosure include fear of judgement or safety, lack of confidence in the system, fear of not being believed, lack of financial resources, minimization of the abuse.

Organization do not have to have all the answers and connect clients with the YWCA or Safe Haven at any time. The YWCA's 24-hour Helpline can be accessed at 616-454-9922. Safe Haven has a 24/7 call or text crisis hotline at 616-452-6664 or a 24/7 web chat at safehavenministries.org

If you have questions, you can connect with Eileen (emckeeper@ywcawcmi.org) or Tom (tcottrell@ywcawcmi.org). They are also willing to bring this training to organizations.

Advisory Council Update

Discussion

Amber Clingman shared that she recently signed on to lead the Advisory Council for those with lived experience of homelessness. The council is an authentic and supportive space to give feedback into the work and how the system can respond in the most supportive way.

The first meeting will be April 6th from 4:30-6:00pm and will be open to any community member with lived experience with homelessness. Incentives will be provided to attendees.

Governance Charter Overview

Discussion

Courtney Myers-Keaton shared that the Coalition's governance charter is a document that outlines how responsibilities are assigned in the Coalition and how work will be done. It also details HUD expectations and defines Steering Council terms.

It is a federal requirement to review and update our charter on an annual basis. This review also allows the Coalition to align with desired changes and be transparent with decision-making processes. This year, the review process will be open to the community.

A small group will go through the charter to review and suggest changes. A survey will also be sent to the full Coalition membership seeking feedback. There are specific federal requirements that must be included in the charter which will be discussed with the small group. If you are interested in joining the small group, connect with Brianne (brobach@hwmuw.org) or Courtney (cmyers-keaton@hwmuw.org).
